DEDICATION

There is no member of the Bucknell family who does not know and enjoy knowing Dr. C. Willard Smith. As chairman of the Department of English, he is, in a very real sense, a director of every student's education. However, his guidance is not of merely the administrative variety; no teacher's calendar is more crowded with personal conferences. Freshmen and sophomores in his classes learn quickly that the wide interests, the perceptive understanding, the subtle guidance and the sober humor which delight them in the classroom are carried into all of his relationships by Dr. Smith. These qualities enable him to transmit to the English majors his wonder at the wealth in his favorite author, Shakespeare, and his delight in exploring the History of the Language.

As secretary of the faculty, Dr. Smith is highly respected by his colleagues, who have repeatedly elected him to that honored position. His never-failing enthusiasm for people's ideas have led him to help many embryo movements at Bucknell become traditions of which the University is proud. Coming to Bucknell in 1925 after graduating from Princeton, from which he holds all three of his degrees, and teaching at the Pingry School for boys, Dr. Smith became chairman of the University's largest department in 1954. In his thirty-four years here he has helped to develop the World Literature course, which was one of the first of its kind. In 1944 he founded the Bucknell Institute for Foreign Students, and he was for twelve years director of that summer orientation program for overseas students which has grown to such heights this year. He was, for a time, associate editor of the Bucknell Studies, the scholarly publication now known as the Bucknell Review. In the past two years he has encouraged and helped to develop the Robbins Lecture Series in world literature. His students who share with him a classroom overlooking the new academic quadrangle report that Dr. Smith, with his usual vivid imagination and dry wit, has suggested a new movement. He has volunteered for the chairmanship of a Committee for the Advancement of an Eighteenth-Century Sunken Garden Outside Coleman Hall.

Dr. Smith is known not only to Bucknellians, but to the whole Lewisburg vicinity for his captivating poetry readings. They are a part of his love of dramatization. The theatre has always been very much a part of his life, and in his willingness to share his interests, knowledge, and experiences, he has, to a large extent, created theatre at Bucknell. He has worked consistently with Cap and Dagger as advisor, director, designer, and actor, and he helped to found the University Players. He serves now as adviser to those two groups of thespians, to whom he is known affectionately as "Willard," and to Theta Alpha Phi.

It is especially fitting that Dr. Smith be chosen recipient of this honor this year. In 1959 Bucknellians produced, for the first time, a play in their own University Theatre. Dr. Smith has for years been imagining, encouraging, and helping to design such a theatre. In giving Bucknell a theatre to fit her specifications the Olin Foundation has made his dream come true. It is with both humility and pride that the class of 1959 thanks Dr. C. Willard Smith for his contributions to Bucknell and dedicates to him this 1959 L'AGENDA.

ADMINISTRATION

The president's home on the corner of University Avenue and Loomis Street is a part of the Bucknell campus.

The President of the University

In the life of Dr. Merle M. Odgers at Bucknell the number ten has played an important part. Dr. Odgers became the tenth president of Bucknell on Dec. 1, 1951. Here he has directed his energies to the overall improvement of the University's life. He is currently engaged in a ten-year, ten-million dollar development plan, which was launched in 1956 under his direction. The purpose of the plan is to place the University in a higher orbit of education. The completion of Coleman Hall in January marked an important step in this program: the next step being a $1,850,000 capital-funds campaign.

Dr. Odgers has supplemented his official duties with extensive travel in Europe and in every one of our United States except the new ones. These are trips he is eagerly anticipating. The president, an avid scholar of English, French, and Latin, shared his literary interest with the students of the Western World Literature course this fall. To them he lectured on one of his favorite poets, Horace.

The Men Beneath the President

A 1941 graduate of Bucknell, John F. Zeller this year assumed the position of Vice President—Business and Finance. With this new title Mr. Zeller will continue to serve as the chief business officer of the University. Responsible to him are the Treasurer and Comptroller, Director of the Physical Plant, Purchasing Agent, Director of Food Services, and Manager of the University Stores. With his administrative duties, Mr. Zeller still maintains his interest in the legal profession and teaches a course in constitutional law.

Dr. Karl D. Hartzell, Dean of the University, has as his responsibility the organization and operation of the academic program. Within his jurisdiction are the selection of faculty personnel, the establishment of educational standards, and supervision of the curricula. As a member of many of the standing committees, it is his concern that all aspects of the academic program be developed to their fullest in accordance with the aims of the University. This year Dean Hartzell directed the final stages of the Bucknell Study which, for the past two years, has re-evaluated the curricula and re-examined the organization of the faculty and student body. In the newly-created office of Assistant Dean, Dr. Frank C. Abbott will work with Dean Hartzell in the office of the Dean of the University.

DR. FRANK C. ABBOTT, in the new post of assistant dean of the University, gets acquainted with Bucknell.

With her assistant, ARLIE W. SCHARDT, TRENNIE E. EISLEY, Director of Public Relations, prepares "Bucknell in Brief," the pamphlet which introduces the University to prospective students.

BEFORE WE ARRIVE on campus we begin to know and appreciate the administrators, for, from the day we receive our letters saying, "You will be happy to know . . ." they have begun to make us a part of the University.

ADMINISTRATION

One soon finds that a release slip from the Treasurer, DONALD B. YOUNG, facilitates registration in the fall.

BERNARD A. RILEY, Superintendent of Buildings, and WALTER C. GEIGER, Director of the Physical Plant, prepare a new freshman dorm.

While visiting the school, prospective students discuss schedules and courses with GEORGE R. FAINT, the Registrar, and MARY A. KUNKLE, his assistant.

JOHN C. HAYWARD, Dean of Student Affairs, works closely with the leaders of student organizations.

WHILE WE ARE HERE, the administrators work not only generally, but individually with us. They perpetuate the friendly and personal spirit of Bucknell by becoming not just titles behind desks but very real and helpful people appearing often in our midst.

DR. MARK C. EBERSOLE is the Chaplain of the University.

HERBERT F. ECKBERG, Director of Engineering, chats with a Tau Beta Pi.

HAROLD W. HAYDEN, Librarian, operates the Bertrand Library.

ADMINISTRATION

The Dean of Women, MARY JANE STEVENSON, center, joins Bucknell girls at the Panhellenic Tea.

ADMINISTRATION

Students come into even more direct contact with many of the administrative employees.

The Director of Food Services, ESTHER B. LONG, is familiar to students who eat at the Cafeteria.

The Medical Director, DR. LESTER P. FOWLE, center, and his associate, DR. JOSEPH WEIGHTMAN, take care of an infirmity visitor.

Incoming supplies are checked by CARL J. GEISER, Purchasing Agent.

AS WE LEAVE, the administrators are looking toward the future of Bucknell and, indivisibly linked with it, the future of Bucknellians.

WESLEY N. HAINES, Director of Development, plans completion of a new academic quad.

The Placement Director, RAYMOND K. IRWIN, studies a senior's file.

*“Education . . . is being able to differentiate between what you know and what you don’t, . . .
knowing where to go to find out what you need to know,
. . . and knowing how to use the information
once you get it.”*

COLEMAN HALL

Coleman Hall, first used in February, 1959, was built through a grant from the Olin Foundation. It houses the social science classrooms, laboratories, and offices; some administrative offices, and a university theatre.

Construction was begun early in 1958.

ENGLISH

Popular and Pioneering Department

Every Bucknellian will remember poignantly days, or rather, nights, of freshman composition (themes never quite what the professor ordered, Aldous Huxley's Brave New World and the resulting papers on "Conformity; Its Evils," a research paper, the spelling exam) and of Western World Literature ("all that's fit to print" from Dante to Dostoyevsky, oral exams, written exams on the days vacations started), for every student, even the engineer, takes those two years of English. English majors will remember also the piles of paperbacks which they bought for their literature courses, the way the windows in the Lit Building would never stay up, and Shakespeare taught the painless way by Dr. Smith.

Not so painless will be the memory of the comprehensive exam given in April to all senior English majors. The purpose of the examination is to correlate and integrate an English major's work for him. It is similar to the type of examination given in foreign universities and is spreading to many departments at Bucknell.

After a World Lit. test: "You mean Gulliver wasn't a tragic hero?"

"What a shame. The text for my other English course will be late."

Freshmen and professors confer frequently over themes.

The Vaughan Literature Building is the haunt of English students.

JOURNALISM

Study of Writing For Communications

Journalism courses, among the most "practical" offered by the English Department, provide study in writing for publications, radio and television, and advertising. Throughout the year, students put their courses to work through editing, managing, or writing for Touche, L'AGENDA, The Bucknellian, The Bucknell Engineer, and The Student Handbook. The radio workshop, WVBU, is the haunt of those interested in radio and television broadcasting. Journalism students gain even more practical experience by participating in the annual Newsmen's Conference, which brings famous columnists and commentators to the campus.

Students who have exhibited exceptional ability in journalism through the editorship of one of the major publications may become members of Pi Delta Epsilon, the national journalism honorary. Rho Tau Sigma, the national radio and television honorary, is open to students who have done outstanding work in broadcasting.

FACULTY—Mr. Harvey M. Powers, Mrs. Dorothy T. Stickney, Mr. Frank W. Merritt.

SPEECH AND DRAMA

Theatre Craft Taught Underground

Probably the only class at Bucknell which met underneath Larison Hall in a tunnel was a theatrical production course familiar to all speech and drama majors. It was here, among huge flats and pieces of scenery spread upon the dirt floor, that students until this year gained a practical knowledge of the crafts of the theatre.

Such underground work lays the foundation for the future skill of hopeful orators and actors. Although they may spend four weeks learning how to say "I am going to New York. I have a friend there. He is an interior decorator," the students in this Department are rewarded when they step into roles such as those of Katherine in Kiss Me Kate, or give an "A" final speech. Most welcome to students of Speech and Drama is the completion of the new theatre in Coleman Hall, the facilities of which will enable this Department to come above ground.

FRENCH

Emphasis on Speaking the Language

As the beginning student of French walks into a conversation hour and thrills the company present with his brilliant "Bonjour, comment-allez vous?" he becomes aware immediately that neither his confused nasals nor his questionable idioms will be scored against him. The congenial atmosphere of these afternoon sessions at La Maison Francaise has proven an enjoyable testing ground to supplement the classroom work. This year's language assistant in French House, where all women students majoring in French live at least one year, was Dominique Eloine Richard. The audio-oral laboratory in the library also aids the beginning student in oral proficiency.

The higher courses in French are often informal discussions of literature which the students read; some are so informal that they meet in Madame Cook's living room. Pi Delta Phi, the French honorary, is open to those who show outstanding ability in French and wish to obtain a greater knowledge of the language and its culture.

GERMAN

Enrollment Up Thirty Per Cent

Due to the current emphasis on the importance of languages, enrollment in German classes at Bucknell has increased thirty per cent. This increase has necessitated plans to build a larger speech laboratory so that Dr. Frantz can give his favorite type of assignment and to teach German in summer school.

Placing its greatest value on speaking the language, the Department requires women students majoring in German to spend a year in Deutsches Haus, where regular conversation hours and German customs are observed. The living room of the house was redecorated this year and now possesses, making it typically German, the only liquor cabinet on campus.

Delta Phi Alpha, the honorary for German students, was led by president Donald Gregory. The group participated in several exchange meetings with other universities.

If it weren't for those unlauts!

FACULTY—Mr. Albert M. K. Blume, Mr. Adolf I. Frantz, chairman; Miss Ingeborg Ristow.

SPANISH

Spanish House a Workshop

A bit of Spain's flavor is brought to the Bucknell campus from abroad to pervade the atmosphere of the Spanish Department. The senores and señoritas who are interested in Spanish find that during regular hours they can test their knowledge of the language by candidly interjecting syllables of Spanish between sips of coffee. Spanish House, the home and workshop of many women Spanish majors, welcomed Teresa Tarrio, instructor and head resident this year, from Madrid.

Some of the seniors teach espanola in the nearby public schools, while others plan to continue their studies abroad. Those students who have special interest in Spanish and who have attained an outstanding average, are initiated into Sigma Delta Pi, the Spanish honorary.

FACULTY—Miss Teresa Tarrio, Miss Beatrice E. Gonzales, Miss Jeanne M. Chew, Mr. Frank A. Sprague, chairman.

CLASSICS

Dr. Miller Awarded Lectureship

At the same times of the morning that huge lecture classes are meeting, a few students are gathered rather informally around the heavy table in language seminar room 235. Dr. Miller is the one tilting back his chair at a precarious angle. The others, who may seem to be having some difficulty with their speech, are Greek or Latin students. But perhaps they are discussing the value of discus-throwing as compared to football, for Dr. Miller has a talent for turning classical thoughts to modern value and comparison. Classics are not dead for his students of such authors as Aristotle, Socrates, Plautus, Terence and Cicero, nor for those students who take classical thought courses. This is the reason Dr. Miller was awarded, this year, the Class of 1956 Lectureship for inspirational teaching.

FACULTY—Mr. Harold W. Miller.

HUMANITIES

Is that his assistant or his model?

FACULTY—Mr. Neil R. Anderson, Mr. George I. Hersey,
Mr. Bruce H. Mitchell.

ART

Enrollment in Courses Swelling

Engineers who like to paint on Sunday afternoons and "C&F's" who can't resist doodling in the margins of their notebooks have joined art majors and liberal art students, this year to fill Bucknell's art classes to overflowing. Two new instructors, Mr. Bruce Mitchell, artist-in-residence, and Mr. Neil Anderson, and several new courses have also served to swell enrollment in this Department.

Courses in art include history, appreciation, architecture, theater production, design, drawing and painting. The products of the last few of these courses are displayed in student shows held in the exhibit room of the library and on the third floor of the Music and Arts Building.

The Department sponsored, this year, appearances by several guest speakers, who lectured and displayed their paintings. One of the best of these exhibits came from the Guggenheim Museum in New York City.

MUSIC

Degrees in Musicianship or Education

Strains of music and the less melodious patter of scales can be heard resounding daily from the lower floors of the Music and Arts Building. Music 100 students invent lyrics to fit the themes of "The New World Symphony" and strain to recognize the third movement on the night before the test. Here also, music majors nervously anticipate their first recitals.

The Music Department offers two degrees, a Bachelor of Science in Music, which is a degree in musicianship and performance, and a Bachelor of Science in Music Education, which prepares the student to teach music. Participation in Chapel Choir or Glee Club and Orchestra or Band for a year is required of all music majors.

Students who meet the qualifications of musicianship, scholarship, and theory are eligible to join Mu Phi Epsilon, the national professional music honorary for women.

PHILOSOPHY

Probing the Perplexing Topics

What kind of universe do we live in? What are the ends of life? What constitutes truth? These are some of the frequent questions which lead to heated debates among neophyte philosophers. Students who possess a keen awareness and formidable vocabulary find a deep satisfaction in discussing the perplexing topics that invariably have been part of man's inner consciousness. Beginning with a course on Greek thinkers and progressing to seminars on contemporary moral issues, the serious student looks behind the classroom pleasure derived from semantics and can begin to appreciate the ideals and wisdom of great philosophers.

Phi Sigma Tau, the recently established philosophy honorary, was led this year by president Norma Coyle.

PSYCHOLOGY

Reputable Quarters For Rats Now

Psychology has at last escaped from the basement of the library and the palatial labs behind Guy Payne's, into the new offices and classrooms of Coleman Hall, where it goes about its business of complexes and couches in a more cheerful atmosphere. Among the advantages of Coleman Hall for psychology students are facilities now on a par with those of the natural sciences, laboratories for student use, and a closed-circuit television system for classroom demonstrations. Even the Department's rats are now provided with luxurious, air-conditioned living quarters.

The Department is now even better equipped to emphasize the practical as well as the theoretical aspects of psychology and to provide the students with opportunities for their own research.

The Psychology Club, open to interested students, and Psi Chi, the national psychology honorary are also important facets of psychology at Bucknell.

RELIGION

Necessary in Liberal Education

Remembered as some of the most vivid hours of life at Bucknell will always be the unforgettable midnight bull sessions in the dorms, where students hopelessly behind in their work somehow become embroiled in the paradoxes and complexities of religion. Voices growing ever-louder, cigarette smoke becoming impenetrable, and emotions worn to a frazzle invariably lead to few conclusions.

In order to cope more successfully with the student's insatiable desire to understand one of the most cogent forces in his life, the Religion Department offers courses dealing with Biblical literature, religious history, and the more basic problems of the psychology and philosophy of religion.

FACULTY—Mr. Mark C. Ebersole, chairman;
Mr. Charles M. Bond, Mr. Robert M. Murphy.

Prints of art masterpieces hang in many dorm rooms.

UNIVERSITY COURSE

A Course Integrating Knowledge

FACULTY—SEATED: Miss Rilla M. Phillips. STANDING: Mr. W. Preston Warren, chairman; Mr. Harry R. Garvin, Mr. Robert E. Butts.

Made vivid through the appropriate anecdotes of Dr. Warren and the stimulus of Dr. Garvin's fervor, the University Course serves to integrate the major fields of human knowledge. A unique course of study, often publicizing guest speakers, it consists of three separate semesters. The first, the sciences, seeks to investigate and evaluate the principles of scientific knowledge. The second, the humanities, is basically a panoramic study of human values. The third, philosophical systems, involves the integration of philosophic concepts of science, humanities, and the practical concerns of the individual and his society.

Several professors take part in the classroom discussions of "Four World Views."

ECONOMICS

Serious Introduction To Supply and Demand

DELTA MU DELTA—FIRST ROW: L. Grauer, J. Corwin. SECOND ROW: J. Neiman, Miss H. Love, M. Beaver.

Every time we buy a cup of coffee in the Bison or a beer mug in the bookstore, we are juggling the delicate balance between supply and demand. The introduction of the student to economics involves the more serious study of the theory of supply and demand along with theories of production and consumption and the formidable principles of business law and finance.

The student of economics hopes to emerge prepared for an active career in the business world. He has the choice of working either toward a B.S. in Commerce and Finance or toward an A.B. in Economics. The degree in commerce and finance is divided into two major fields: the general course, which provides a broad business education background, and the two diverging secretarial courses. The four-year secretarial course includes the study of mastery of shorthand, typing, and office management, while the medical secretarial course combines the study of biology with commerce and finance. Practical experience becomes the ultimate goal when a girl works as a secretary to a member of the faculty during her senior year.

The Economics Club, sponsored by the Department, invites various speakers to talk of subjects relating to the field of economics. Membership in Delta Mu Delta, the national economics honorary fraternity, is open to outstanding students in economics.

EDUCATION

Student Teaching Its Highlight

KAPPA PHI KAPPA—Mr. W. Sauvain, R. Holmes, D. Bakish.

"What a day!" This comment is heard so often at the end of the first day of student teaching. Depending on the inflection of the speaker's voice, those three ambiguous words may mean, "The children in my class are just darling. I can't wait to go back tomorrow," or "Those kids know more than I do. What do I do now?" Gradually the practice teachers forget their initial reactions and begin to take on the role of classroom supervisors. During this valuable period in their senior year, education majors have the chance to turn their previously acquired knowledge into practical experience. Inspired to look ahead, they forget their aching feet!

This year Dr. J. Charles Jones, chairman of the Department, headed a special research program involving the public schools of the Lewisburg area. The program was made possible by a $7,500 grant from the Fund for the Advancement of Education established by the Ford Foundation. Co-operating with the University, the Education Department helped the area schools in their search for better methods of educating their pupils.

HISTORY

Non-Western Cultures Added

By a bit of modern wizardry, History 99 and 100, the two basic history courses, avoid being merely a list of names, dates and events to be memorized, and present to the student a dynamic picture of his cultural heritage by stressing the social, political and economic developments of western civilization.

These two survey courses serve as a background for more advanced studies of individual civilizations—ancient, American, European, and English. This year, the addition of a program of non-western cultures, presented by Dr. Chu, has broadened the scope of the Department considerably. Besides a basic course in the major civilizations of Asia, more specific studies such as those of "Southwest Asia in the Modern Era," and "India since 1498" are offered.

Barring strikes, the daily paper is one of a political science student's texts.

POLITICAL SCIENCE

Extra! Text Goes On Strike

Stacks of New York Times are dragged from beneath the bed, the dust is swept away, and the Poli. Sci. 100 student is ready to prepare for his test. Although few stacks of the Times gathered dust during the New York newspaper strike this year, the Political Science Department carried on with its other texts, succeeding, as usual, in giving students an understanding of the workings of national and international governments and insight into their strengths and weaknesses.

A special opportunity provided by this Department for interested juniors and seniors is the Washington Semester, a program through which a student can spend a semester at The American University in Washington, D. C., where he learns firsthand about the government of the United States. The students selected receive full credit at Bucknell for work completed in Washington.

Phi Sigma Alpha, a national honorary, recognizes students of outstanding achievement in this Department. This year, the honorary sponsored an election returns party, at which the state and congressional returns were interpreted and discussed as they came over television.

SOCIOLOGY

Department Moves Into Coleman Hall

FACULTY—Mr. William F. Byron, Mr. Ralph Spielman, chairman; Mr. Helmut R. Wagner.

Culture is defined by some socially minded individuals as the ability to eat peas with a fork and to speak with a Boston accent. However, in sociological jargon, culture is a particular stage of advancement in civilization. Equipped with a distinctive vocabulary, an inquisitive mind, and a desire to improve human relations, the sociology major tries to analyze the complex problems of our society. He does this through extensive research and practical investigation.

Bucknell students participated in the Central Pennsylvania Project this year and acquired field experience within a fifty mile radius of Lewisburg. Another Bucknell study, conducted by Mr. Helmut Wagner, was designed to determine the relationship between "Religious Background and Higher Education."

The Sociology Department itself has gone through an evolution with the appointment of two new professors, Mr. Ralph Spielman and Mr. William F. Byron and with its move from the temporary structure which has been known since the war as the "Soc. Building" to permanent quarters in new Coleman Hall. Those students who become engrossed in the study of cultural patterns may be eligible for Alpha Kappa Delta, the national sociology honorary.

PHYSICAL SCIENCE

BIOLOGY

New Instructors and Student Club

Amid the phenol-laden atmosphere of Taylor Hall, the earthy smell of the greenhouse, and the distinctive air of the "rat-room," the biology students happily go about their business of dissecting cats, growing plants and cultures, and raising hamsters. Budding zoologists wade through the complex reactions and high degree of order involved in animal processes, while the botanists explore the structure and life processes of the world of plants.

Two new members of the faculty are Dr. James Allen and Dr. Rudolph Haffner, who have been teaching biological science and genetics, respectively, this year. Next year they will be teaching more classes in keeping with changes in the curriculum which the Department has planned this year.

A new feature this year is the Bucknell Biological Society, formed for all interested students. The group will sponsor speakers and films on subjects in zoology and botany, and will initiate a special committee to discuss the problems of pre-medical students.

CHEMISTRY

Chemistry An Obstacle Course

In spite of overzealous janitors who invariably lock the lab the day before the report on "an unknown" is due, the more persevering chemistry student manages to survive  $H_2S$  fumes, benzene fires, and Dr. Heine's word problems and, after four years, emerge from Olin Science Building with the acid-eaten remnants of a lab coat as proof of his struggle.

Although the trials are many, the rewards are great. Through the study of chemistry one can begin to appreciate the amazing complexity of seemingly solid matter and the all-important role that sub-microscopic particles play in determining the workings of the human body and the nature of every substance in the universe.

Any interested chemistry student can join the American Chemistry Society or take advantage of the Merck Lecture Series. The latter program features speakers from both academic and industrial fields of chemistry and is sponsored by both the Chemistry Department and by Merck Chemical Company. Outstanding students are invited to become members of Alpha Chi Sigma, the professional chemistry fraternity.

MATHEMATICS AND ASTRONOMY

Bases For a Career in the Space Race

In a basement classroom of Olin Science Building a frustrated and disheveled math professor may be seen working on a calculus word problem for what seems an eternity to his confused students. At last he works out the correct solution, and with a look of tired triumph stiffens as he announces, "Now, for tomorrow, work out the next ten problems." For those math students who manage to finish the assignments and consistently get the right answers, Pi Mu Epsilon, the national mathematics fraternity, was established. Gary Munkelt was president of the group this year.

Star gazing is not merely a romantic pastime for some students. For astronomy lab periods eager amateurs flock to the observatory at all hours of the day and night to contemplate the rings around Saturn or the craters on the moon. The thrill that comes with looking at a star several light years away becomes an enduring memory of the beauty and incomprehensibility of the vast universe. The telescope, the instrument which makes such views possible, was readjusted this year, making more accurate observations a reality. This year Dr. Gold taught astronomy, his favorite subject, in the absence of Dr. Polak.

GEOGRAPHY AND GEOLOGY

Stress On Practical Experience

Courses in Geology and Geography, with their labs, slides, and field trips, introduce Bucknellians to the concepts of the physical nature and history of the earth, and of man's relationship to his environment. The Department offers courses leading to a major in geology which prepares students for graduate study or employment in public service and industry. Although there is no longer a major in geography, courses are offered in this field to satisfy the student seeking a liberal education and to support the several courses offered in the social science fields.

Practical experience for the student is a valued asset of this Department. This year, geology students, on their field trips, disturbed the rock formations of various parts of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, and the New England states. Senior students gain additional experience as lab assistants for introductory courses.

Gold dust?

See anything interesting?

Probably the hour most vividly remembered by Bucknell's students of physics is the weekly conclave at ten o'clock every Wednesday in the Olin Science Auditorium. This is the "magic show" during which experiments with electricity, magnetism, heat, and sound are performed amid flashing lights and flying sparks.

The modern wizards in this Department are required to master the physical principles of nature and to exercise precision and speed in working with these principles in their various labs in general physics, optics, electronics, mechanics, and nuclear physics.

This year the Physics Club, in conjunction with Sigma Pi Sigma, the national physics honorary, established a weekly colloquium for which speakers were scheduled each week.

MILITARY SCIENCE AND TACTICS

Common Hour, Camp, and Commissions

Bucknell's students of military science make their presence most impressively—and audibly—known every Friday morning at eleven o'clock. This khaki and olive green spectacle is "common hour," and the ROTC men spend it forming on the soccer fields and marching triumphantly through the campus to the strains of nearly everything from J. P. Sousa to "The Bridge on the River Kwai."

Since the establishment of the Department of Military Science on the Bucknell campus in 1951, men have been required to enroll in classes of basic army instruction for two years. During their freshman year, after they have become familiar with the organization of the army and ROTC, they concentrate on acquiring skill with individual weapons, developing marksmanship, and gaining a knowledge of American military history. The second year is spent in the study of map reading, crew-served weapons and gunnery, leadership and exercise of command.

Junior and senior men who pass the qualifications may continue in ROTC for further training. By satisfactorily completing the advanced ROTC course, a student becomes eligible for a commission as a second lieutenant in the United States Army or United States Army Reserve.

During the summer preceding their senior year, those men participating in the advanced course are required to attend six weeks of summer camp. At camp, the principles of leadership, discipline, and strategy learned at Bucknell are expanded and applied.

The Military Ball, sponsored by the Cadet Regiment, was held in February and provided a lighter side to the rigid ROTC program. The Officers' Club, Pershing Rifles, Rifle Team and ROTC Band are organizations included under the guidance of the Department.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Wide Variety of Sports at Bucknell

Although some of the freshman women undoubtedly enter Bucknell without even the ability to keep their heads above water, by the end of their sophomore year, the Physical Education Department sees to it that they have either taken a course in swimming or passed a swimming test. In addition, each woman student, by the end of her sophomore year, will have submitted her figure for improvement to the rigors of "personal survey" and have chosen, twice a semester, courses in anything from tap dancing to bowling, golf to gymnastics.

For the men as well, physical education is a requirement for four semesters, and they, too, have a wide variety of courses from which to choose. Freshmen are given a general survey of the history, strategy, and rules of sports and usually concentrate on soccer, softball, boxing and wrestling. Sophomores are offered, in addition, such courses as bowling, badminton, golf, swimming and tennis.

CHEMICAL ENGINEERING

ChE's Have Their Lighter Moments

There are several unpublicized facts about the Chemical Engineering Department which indicate that the world of a "ChE" is not one of complete austerity. Did you know, for example, that the Department owns a licensed still? However, the university need not fear an invasion by the federal men. The still produces soprophyl alcohol, which is not consumable. Did you hear about the experiment which requires a toilet bulb filled with sand? Imagine the chem engineers trooping to the hardware store for a toilet bulb so that they can learn about unsteady heat transfer! Did you observe the emergency squad dashing to the Engineering Building when acetic acid pervaded the air? Or, were you informed of the experiment to produce a fine detergent? The powder was so fine that the students could not collect it!

Chemical engineering does have its lighter aspects, but its overall purpose is quite serious. The engineer studies unit processes such as evaporation, distillation, and extraction. He then begins an original development problem, in which he builds his own apparatus. This project tests the chemical engineer's ingenuity and gives him practical experience in doing research.

CIVIL ENGINEERING

High Degree of Specialization Today

The young men with transits and steel tape who dot the campus on sunny afternoons are civil engineering students, but they do more than make new maps of the friendly 300 acres, since civil engineering is a broad field. It is divided into several branches besides surveying and includes construction, highway and railroad, municipal and sanitary, and hydraulic engineering. There is a high degree of specialization in the various branches of civil engineering today. For example, municipal and sanitary engineers help to plan urban centers and design and construct water supply systems, while hydraulic engineers are concerned with improving water supplies, irrigation, and flood control.

Through lectures, laboratory work, and field practice, such as the survey of the campus, the civil engineering students are trained for specialized jobs, either for private companies or with government agencies. In addition to engineering courses, the student takes required courses in mathematics and physics. More advanced students may gain valuable experience through independent research projects concerned with laboratory work, drafting design, or library research.

Additional opportunities are offered to the students by the American Society for Civil Engineers. Besides discussing topics of current interest and hearing outstanding speakers in the field, they also share their engineering problems and experiences. Annual conventions of ASCE are held at which the student has the opportunity to learn of the experiences of civil engineering students from other universities.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING

Revisions Made in EE Curriculum

As well as the conventional flying sparks and tangled circuits, an analog computer and several pieces of new laboratory equipment were added to the Electrical Engineering Department to keep up with the modern trends in electronics and communication. In addition, a new class, Servo Mechanisms, was added to the curriculum.

Other revisions in the curriculum this year included the institution of a more liberal choice of subjects in the four engineering fields with an increase in laboratory work and a raised entrance requirement in mathematics placing entering students in analytical geometry. The department was reaccredited by the Engineering Council of Professional Development for the ensuing five years.

The American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Institute of Radio Engineers, the honor society, besides having sponsored its regular open house, participated along with several other universities in something new this year, a "Prize Paper" contest. Through competition among E. E. students the writer of the best paper on a professional subject was chosen to receive the Walter B. Morton Prize of one hundred dollars. The seniors in this organization also made an inspection trip to the New York-New Jersey area, visiting four plants.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING

Learning Takes Place in Classrooms, Laboratories, and Plants

Formidable and awesome to the uninitiated, the field of mechanical engineering offers a challenge even to the men with slide rules. Primarily concerned with the two fields of power and machine design, the Department's emphasis is placed on stress analysis and performance of power plants and machines of a nonelectrical nature. In addition to an understanding of the basic principles of thermodynamics and mechanics, a serious determination is essential to the student. He must struggle to gain a working knowledge of the generation and use of steam power, internal combustion engines, and turbo machinery.

Aside from the classroom, the mechanical engineer has ready access to an equally mysterious laboratory where he can practically apply what he has learned in theory. A baffling maze of steam generating equipment, machine tools, diesel and gas engines, refrigerating units, and turbo-generators lurk in the laboratory. Since class and laboratory work are supplemented with field trips to local industrial plants, the student has the opportunity to become fully acquainted with the techniques and equipment currently used by industry. Mechanical engineering seminars with representatives of local industry help to make the graduate engineer keenly aware of the problems to be encountered upon accepting employment.

Recently, as a result of rapid scientific development in the field of nuclear power, greater emphasis is being placed on that phase of the curriculum. New turbo machinery is being introduced in order that the Mechanical Engineering Department may keep up to date with modern developments.

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers is the national professional organization of which most mechanical engineers are members. A program is being developed in which authorities from industry are invited to speak at the meetings of the Society.

Is that how engineers get that slope-shouldered look?

SENIOR CLASS

The class of 1959 can look back upon four years of fun, achievement, and change. These old folks were the only students left who could remember life under "prohibition," which experience they could sometimes be persuaded to describe to their younger cohorts. They could also tell the underclassmen that they had watched the campus grow—that the Bucknell they entered as freshmen had no Freas-Rooke swimming pool, no Coleman Hall, fewer cars, and a smaller student body. The seniors could boast of their freshman year, when they won the annual freshman-sophomore tug-of-war and captured the Booster Club's class spirit plaque from a chagrined class of '56, the three-time winners. Other sensations of that year were the famous panty-raid on Larison Hall and the introduction of second semester rushing for men. During their sophomore and junior years this class can be thanked for taking time out from increasingly harder studies to bring the Pier Five and the Benny Goodman Band to the campus for their class dances.

As freshmen, the class of '59 lived under prohibition.

"I wonder if we'll ever go to another big formal after the Senior Prom?"

JUNIOR CLASS

The class of '60 managed to avoid getting somewhat lost between the newly-upperclass sophomores and the veteran seniors, a fate which the junior class sometimes suffers. Leading the class in their frantic efforts to balance their budget in anticipation of senior expenses were the class officers.

The year was filled with plans for importing Billy May to the campus for the Junior Class dance, the parliamentary confusion of class meetings, the tendency of couples to lose each other in the cavernous recesses of Hunt Hall's living rooms, and the preparation for assuming the status of seniors. Several of the junior men and women spent the year participating in the freshman counseling program, a traditional responsibility and joy of their class. The juniors made the most of this last year before shouldering, in the spring, the responsibilities of being top men on the Bucknell totem pole.

"May in November" was the theme of the class dance.

Juniors meet for a "cigarette break" at the library, which many of them haunted as they tackled more specialized courses.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

The sophomores, happy in their new rank of upper-classmen, quickly traded their last year's bewildered stares for the comfortable smiles of those who know the ropes and are on the other side of the hazing fence. In a humane spirit, they improved the manner of conducting Freshman Tribunal, which their class operates as a court for offenders of hazing rules, and the girls led their freshman rivals in the annual "duck walk" to the fraternity houses.

Many sophomore boys, emancipated from the confines of Swartz Hall, took up residence in off-campus apartments, and they rode around campus in the first legal cars owned by sophomores at Bucknell. The girls moved their pledge paddles and stuffed animals from the various freshman dorms into Harris Hall, the traditional, crowded but happy home for the majority of sophomore girls. Through their lit tests and their mythical slumps, their parties, and their pinnings, the class of '61 maintained a seldom-failing cheerfulness which lasted the whole year.

OFFICERS—SEATED: H. McLaren, secretary; STANDING: J. Edel, vice president; D. Halbert, president; J. Hassenplug, treasurer.

A popular "goof-off" place for the sophomores is the Harris Hall TV room.

Some sophomore men find that they can escape campus distractions by taking rooms off campus.

FRESHMAN CLASS

After whirling through a short freshman week, the class of '62 managed to survive three weeks of hazing, including the traditional signs, dinks and sessions with freshman tribunal. After many consultations with counselors and student handbooks, enough problems were solved and questions answered to replace the initial strangeness with a feeling of belonging at Bucknell. The freshmen's desire to be a part of their school was increased by the arrival of four-weeks' grades; at that point, smiling through their tears, most settled down to some serious studying.

From the beginning of this year, whether cheering their own Baby Bison football team to victory, or loyally supporting the varsity teams, ear-splitting choruses of "Ray '62" made the freshman a spirited addition to stadium and gym. Showing off campus and friends on parents' weekends; trying their hand at welcoming periodic influxes of ministers, Burmese, and alumni; going to Sunday dinner exchanges; attending fraternity open houses, firesides, and class dances, crammed the calendar of an exciting, if exhausting freshman year.

The task of decorating the campus water towers is traditionally assumed by freshman men.

LEADERSHIP HONORARIES

For the Leaders of the Leaders

The people who make the best use of those famous "leader calendars," which the bookstore has in stock for the extra-active on campus, and who manage to excel also in their studies are rewarded by membership in the two leadership honoraries, Mortar Board and Omicron Delta Kappa.

Mortar Board is a select group of senior girls who, tapped in the spring of their junior year for excellence in leadership, scholarship, and service, encourage those standards among the women. They give occasional coffee hours in Larison living room for all women students and sponsor the annual "Ugly-Man Contest" to raise money for their scholarship.

The members of Omicron Delta Kappa, tapped before the student body at a chapel service, are among the highest thirty-five per cent of the men students in scholarship and have displayed distinguished service, character, and leadership in campus affairs. The student and faculty members of this organization work to promote superior leadership on the campus.

Bucknell's Government is Bicameral

SFC establishes campus election rules.

The Student-Faculty Congress is composed of two branches, the Cabinet and Council. Cabinet serves as a co-ordinating unit for all student activities. In this connection, the Cabinet supervised the plans for Spring Weekend and the Artist Series, and formulated regulations to improve the functioning organizations on campus.

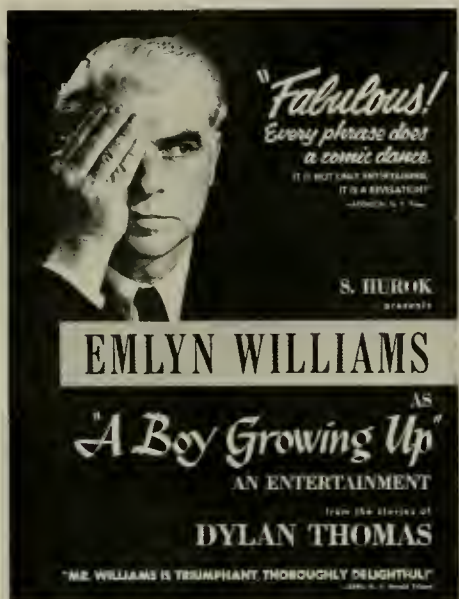

Council is a deliberating body and, as such, tends to debate rather than take action. Theoretical discussions have been held concerning the responsibility of student government for improving Bucknell as an institute of higher learning. Concrete accomplishments include the approval of the budget, the establishment of a committee to investigate expenditures in student activities, and the removal of honorariums for students engaged in extra-curricular activities. Committees such as the one studying expenditures are the working units of SFC.

Last fall the SFC sponsored a leadership conference for all those who had positions of responsibility in student government. Those attending were given the opportunity to compare notes with those in similar positions. In an effort to gather helpful information from other campuses, the Congress created the Intercollegiate Relations Committee.

WSGA

A Code to Last After College

Honor is the password of the Women's Student Government Association. The word is one of the mainstays of the behavior code of women students at Bucknell; WSGA hopes that it will become one of the guideposts for mature community living after college.

WSGA is a democratic government with a judicial branch, a legislative branch, and an executive branch: Honor Council, House of Representatives, and Senate, respectively. House of Representatives acts as the common receptacle for each student's ideas; Senate studies the suggestions and accepts those which are beneficial; and Honor Council upholds the final decisions, keeping in mind the philosophy of WSGA as well as disciplining the women students.

In addition to governing the women students, WSGA participates in the social and educational activities of the campus. Sem-Night, Party-Night, Student-Faculty Banquet, and a speaker, Mrs. Lillian Gilbreth, were sponsored by the women students.

WSGA also provides financial aid through presentation of an annual scholarship and through a philanthropic project. This year the women students contributed to the Evangelical Hospital in Lewisburg.

MSA

New Programs to Further Purpose

Big Dick Hunn pounded the gavel this year that controlled the men of MSA. No further display of violence was necessary, for the representatives of the Men's Student Association peacefully cooperated "to better the welfare of the men students on campus intellectually, athletically, and socially."

This year, MSA inaugurated an academic lecture series, inviting champions of industry, management, and labor to address the male student body. MSA also first suggested that the University make a film about Bucknell.

Athletically, MSA again scored. The organization initiated an insurance program for participants in men's intramurals, presented a $2600 scoreboard for the basketball court, and tried to form a lacrosse team.

The officers of MSA lead the men students' government. Supporting them is the Men's Council, composed of one representative each from IFC, the Men's Counselors, the classes, and the Independent Men. The Council governs and advises the House of Representatives, which comes in close contact with the men students. These joint judicial bodies demonstrate the teamwork necessary to meet the challenges that arise before the men students.

MEN'S COUNSELORS AND PROCTORS

Students Aid Dean of Men's Staff

Occupational hazards do not deter the men's counselors from a course of strenuous action. Chosen on the basis of personality, friendly forbearance, and understanding, these dauntless adventurers are qualified to tackle the many and miscellaneous problems the freshmen inevitably develop. Each counselor risks his privacy for a year in a freshman dorm with his group, sharing with them the new experiences of college life, including those infamous freshman pranks of which he is so often the victim.

Within each upperclass dormitory proctors serve in the same capacity to counsel and to enforce regulations among the upperclass men.

WOMEN'S COUNSELORS AND HEAD RESIDENTS

Upperclassmen Lead Living Units

There's never a dull moment in the busy day of a counselor or a head resident. Each is quick to graciously adapt to a variety of complex situations, laughing when she finds her room either piled high with crumpled newspapers or completely "rearranged," sympathizing when there is a broken date or a low grade, and advising her proteges about everything from when to wear bermuda shorts to how to get that special date. The counselor, as a substitute mother to a group of freshman girls, has more than her share of problems, balanced by personal gratification found in guiding "her" girls. The head resident, in addition to being available for moral support, helps to maintain a smoothly-functioning living unit, her duties including anything from replacing a light bulb to chasing a mouse.

ACADEMIC HONORARIES

Bucknell Respects High Scholarship

Membership in a national honorary provides recognition for those Bucknellians whose scholarship and character prove superior. For the freshmen, Phi Eta Sigma and Alpha Lambda Delta, for men and women students, respectively, recognize the achievement of a 2.5 average first semester, or of a 2.5 cumulative average at the end of the first year. Both honoraries serve to encourage high standards of achievement; Phi Eta Sigma distributing pamphlets to all freshmen on "How to Study," and Alpha Lambda Delta maintaining a scholarship fund as an incentive to all women students.

For Bucknell engineers exists one of the few national chapters of Tau Beta Pi, the highest national engineering honorary. The aim of this group is to promote a spirit of liberal education in the engineering schools of America, and membership is offered on the basis of outstanding work and character.

The golden key of Phi Beta Kappa, perhaps the most respected of awards, is given to those students in the upper tenth of the Junior class and upper fifth of the Senior class, whose distinguished over-all school record—grades, service, character—meets the high standards of this oldest of national honoraries.

L'AGENDA

A Realistic Record of the Year

"And memories fond come trooping by." As each Bucknellian turns the pages of L'AGENDA, he will reminisce about the people and places, the work and worry, and the dances and dates that spelled "college life." The finished masterpiece is the result of a herd of eager journalists and zealous photographers whose efforts enabled us to make the 1959 L'AGENDA our most coveted souvenir of the year. Their aim was to assemble a lively realistic record of the year at Bucknell, and to crystallize the feeling of Bucknell life for both undergraduates and sentimental seniors.

Down in the subterranean gloom of the Carnegie Building, in the tiny windowless office, work was centralized. By going underground, the staff came up with some good new ideas, including the student index, picture-essays, narrative headlines and candid shots of sororities and fraternities. These improvements may help the staff attain its goal—a top college yearbook.

BUCKNELLIAN

The Weekly Life of the Bucknellian

The Bucknellian is a weekly college newspaper conceived every Tuesday afternoon in the minds of its student editorial staff. This staff meets in Hunt little living room and plans for the birth and development of the paper. At this time the group of editors criticizes the last edition and makes suggestions for improvement. The editor dictates assignments to the news editor, who will send them to the reporters. Then the associate editor reviews comments from the administration and suggests news articles and possible features or editorials. The editorial assistant assigns an editorial to one of the members of the staff and discusses topics for feature editorials. Planning pictures for the coming issue occupies the remainder of the meeting.

After the reporters receive their assignments, they have interviews with professors and students, or they attend events in order to get the information that they need for their articles. The reporter has a deadline, which is 3:30 Sunday evening. He deposits his story in the box in Harris Hall, and a member of the copy staff collects the articles. The copy editor and her staff rewrite the articles and send any rough drafts to the typing editor.

At 8 o'clock on Monday morning, the material goes to Focht's to be printed in galley form. The editor utilizes these galleys on Wednesday afternoon, when she prepares the make-up for pages 2 and 3. The feature pages are arranged by the features editor. Wednesday is a very busy afternoon at the Bucknellian office on Market Street. The proofreaders and headline writers provide the finishing touch for the articles.

On Thursday the editor makes up the front page, which contains the most important news. When the final heads are completed, the dummy goes to the printer. On Friday afternoon the Bucknellian is no longer a dummy; it rolls off the press, a real newspaper.

STUDENT HANDBOOK

An Indispensable Reference Work

"Quick! Where's my handbook? Here comes another upperclassman!" The pocket-sized student handbook has been a source of salvation to many a persecuted frosh during those first three torturous weeks of campus life. Later in the year, it becomes the only reference work which will tell him what it means to be "clutched" for his first test, or "snowed" by a Greek-letter group. Not only for the freshmen does it contain vital information such as freshman rules and current collegiate slang, but it also serves as a handy reference for upperclassmen in solving minor perplexities about University regulations, administration functions and services, and the constitutions and by-laws of SFC, MSA, and WSGA.

All extracurricular activities and honoraries are described and explained also in the student handbook. It is published by the Office of the Dean of Student Affairs, and is written entirely by Bucknellians under the direction of a student editor.

TOUCHE

"En Garde" Bucknellians!

Touche! And it is a battle of wit, humor, art, and fine literary work, as each page of this popular magazine battles for supremacy over the excellence of the preceding pages. A refreshing interlude in this fierce battle of wit can be found in the center of the magazine where the Miss Touche of that issue reigns supreme amid the quips and buffonery of her subjects.

Several innovations broadened the interest of this year's Touche. To highlight its literary quality a regular book review section was introduced, while "Parry and Thrust," a page of short humorous sketches and poems, was revived in an effort to encourage original contributions of humorous material from the Bucknell campus. Besides the new content, the layout of the magazine and an increased amount of art added to the general improvement of the publication.

Touche had a strong appeal for each student, for its fine variety offered short stories, poetry, jokes, essays, and serious editorials, which enabled every and any subject to be dealt with. Although the popularity of the magazine is campus-wide, which can be proven by the fact that students prefer reading Touche to their textbooks, it also is sent to about thirty-five other schools in a magazine exchange.

The entire staff is composed of students. Mr. Harold Shapiro served as the staff's faculty adviser, and Bruce Mitchell was a new addition to the staff as the art adviser.

The January issue brightens the classes-and-coffee routine.

BUCKNELL ENGINEER

Engineer Admitted to ECMA

It is obvious from the literary quality of The Bucknell Engineer that some of the Bucknell engineering students can wield their typewriters as well as their slide rules. This magazine, which is published quarterly, includes articles written by the faculty and students from the various engineering departments and some articles from outside sources.

Regular features of The Bucknell Engineer are articles informing the students of the latest developments in the chemical, civil, electrical, and mechanical fields of engineering. In addition to technical articles, The Bucknell Engineer includes alumni and engineering honorary news, book-reviews, cartoons, jokes, and student-contributed brain-twisters.

The Bucknell Engineer is read not only by BU students and faculty, but is sent to alumni and many nearby high schools. This year, after being reviewed for a year, the Engineer was admitted to the Engineering College Magazine Association. The association has a restricted membership including magazines from only forty-eight leading colleges and universities.

"You're on the air!" and you are all alone. After the first terrifying thrill, the WVBU neophyte collects his wits, clears his parched throat, introduces "Copyright Pending," announces "Beep, Beep," and frantically signals for his Man Friday, his ever-loyal engineer, to take over. In fact, it is just this vital coordination between announcer and engineer that mysteriously smooths over "technical difficulties," producing the professional atmosphere of efficiency and timed order.

The student-operated radio workshop has as its station managers Glenda Dornsife and her board of directors, who are elected by WVBU members. Any student who is reasonably sure that his voice won't crack may become a member of WVBU by serving a specified term of apprenticeship, after which he may have his own program.

At almost any time of the day or night strains from WVBU fill the dorms. The early morning show, "Jam for Breakfast," wakes us up and braces us for our 8 o'clock classes, while many a student burns the midnight oil attempting to study and listen to the "Bitter End." Since WVBU invades our very rooms, it is an integral part of Bucknell life that we will vividly recall.

BOARD OF PUBLICATIONS AND RADIO

Board Seeks New Offices

Over coffee cups in one of the private rooms of the University Cafeteria, the editors and station manager, the business managers, and the advisers of the campus communications meet monthly to establish policies and work out problems. The Board of Publications and Radio exists to maintain a high quality in student journalism and radio. This they attempt to do by setting up requirements for the major positions on the five campus publications and in the radio station, by legislating on the methods of electing or choosing these staff heads, and by discussing common problems. They choose one of their members to represent the publications and radio on the Student-Faculty Congress.

This year, as a result of the Board's discussions, Mr. Zeller agreed to give more office space on the Hill to the five publications when the Carnegie Building offices are vacated. The Bucknellian, too, is to have an office on campus. The Board also investigated the possibilities of obtaining a professional photographer for the campus.

The Board is under the direction of the Dean of Student Affairs, who has appointed its chairman. No student publication bearing the name of Bucknell University may be published without the approval of this board.

CAMPUS ORGANIZATIONS

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Sponsors Several Valuable Programs

TED DUPUY, CA president and FORREST BROWN, general secretary.

Hidden away in one of the recesses of the Carnegie Building is that cheerful nook known as the CA office. The amazing fact about the Christian Association, however, is that this group's exuberance overflows the two small office rooms and permeates almost every phase of life on the Bucknell campus.

The school year had not even begun before Cowan was packed full of energetic counselors and CA leaders, who willingly submitted themselves to three days of rollicking fun and helpful orientation called Freshman Camp. When the participants of Freshman Camp finally migrated back to campus, freshman orientation by CA continued with Freshman Firesides, in each of which two upperclass co-leaders stimulated group discussions on campus problems, dating, and the Religion-In-Life Week topic. "Changing Values on the College Campus."

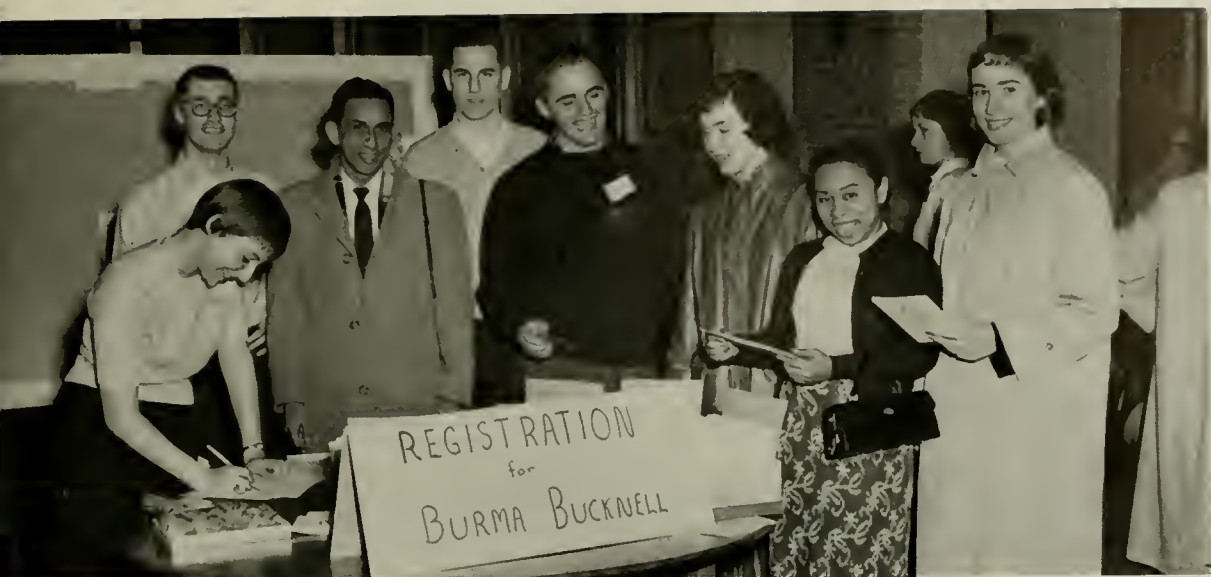

Besides the regular Sunday morning Nine-Thirty classes at which Dr. Ebersole, Mr. Murphy, and other faculty speakers led thought-provoking discussions on religion in the life of the college student, the CA sponsored the annual Religion-In-Life Week in November, which proved to be one of the most successful since the program was first started. Religion-In-Life Week was a three day series of concentrated thought, discussion and debate based on the book, "Changing Values in College," by Dr. Phillip E. Jacob, one of the main speakers of the week.

During Burma-Bucknell weekend the Bucknell students once again lived in a bit of Burmese culture as the entire campus opened its doors to receive the Burmese students in a slightly oriental atmosphere. The annual WUS drive and various community service projects made the CA program, which was headed by Ted DuPuy, a full and varied one.

CAP AND DAGGER

'59 Sees First Play in New Theatre

For weeks preceding a Cap and Dagger production, members and apprentices are frantically memorizing lines, constructing and painting scenery, collecting ads, and designing costumes, sets, and lights. To this scene of apparent chaos, president Casey Bischof attempted to bring integration and order. Ignoring their ulcers and lost sleep, the play directors demanded expression and supplied often-forgotten lines. Willard Smith, Harvey Powers, and George Hersey, advisers to the group, participated wholeheartedly in the chaos and reveled in the glory of opening nights.

Last November, for its first production of the season, Cap and Dagger presented the Greek tragedy Antigone by Sophocles. The Admirable Crichton by James Barrie was the final play of the year and the first of Cap and Dagger's plays to be produced in the theatre of Coleman Hall. Early in the fall, Cap and Dagger held an open house for freshmen to stimulate the interest of prospective new members. In December, upon the invitation of the town's PTA, the group gave a presentation of Beauty and the Beast to the children of Lewisburg. Actor's Lab, composed of students who are interested in dramatics or are considering acting as a profession, gave a reading of Dylan Thomas' one-act play, Under Milk Wood.

Cap and Dagger is unique in that it is completely run by students, who direct, produce and manage productions and business. A milestone was reached this year when the organization moved into the new theatre in Coleman Hall. The pride of all the members, the University theatre includes an Izenour board for lighting, large wings for the ease of set changes and storage, a shop under the stage, offices, and a Green Room. It seats five hundred people.

Theta Alpha Phi, the national dramatics honorary, was led by president Sunny Susskind, and assisted in the selection of the plays which Cap and Dagger presented.

"Marry me, marry me, marry me," Lucentio begs Bianca in "Kiss Me Kate."

UNIVERSITY PLAYERS

Pool of Campus Talent

When the six talented and musical groups on campus combine their efforts, the effect can be nothing less than an extravaganza with all of the glitter, glamor and professional atmosphere of Broadway. The University Players includes Cap and Dagger, the orchestra, the men's and women's glee clubs, the Bucknell band, and Orchesis. Its board of directors consists of one student and one faculty member from each of these groups. Automatic membership is offered to anyone who participates in the yearly production.

1958-59 was a signal year for the University Players. Their presentation of Kiss Me Kate marked the official opening of the University Theatre in Coleman Hall. This long awaited theatre provides the players with a stage and stage house which are larger and better equipped than those of many professional theatres on Broadway. Moreover, two large workshops provide the group with the space and equipment to carry on all their activities under one roof. An added attraction, the traditional Green Room, or actor's lounge, is equipped with books and relics of the theatre.

OFFICERS—FIRST ROW: Mr. R. Beckman, Mr. C. Smith, Mr. G. Hersey, Mr. H. Powers, S. Susskind. SECOND ROW: L. Haigh, C. Bischof.

The new University Theatre was made to fit the dreams and plans of Bucknell thespians.

ORCHESTRA

Squirrels Issue Complaint

Screech! Boom! The squirrels who inhabit the area around the Music and Arts Building stop in their tracks on Wednesday and Friday afternoons as the Bucknell University Symphony Orchestra begins tuning up for rehearsal. Soon, however, even the squirrels are charmed by the beautiful strains into which the noise fades.

This year, under the direction of Mr. Lindsey Merrill, the fifty students and professors who comprised the Symphony Orchestra lent their talents to the accompaniment of "The Messiah," and the orchestration of The University Players' production of Kiss Me Kate. In addition to their annual appearance in the Spring Music Festival, these devoted musicians produced a variety of excellent concerts, including one for the children of Lewisburg and one featuring selected soloists. On tour this year, the orchestra extended its music for the enjoyment of the people of Elmira, New York, Tamaqua, and Williamsport.

BAND

Bucknell Band Wears Western Attire

A full week before the last Bucknell students have left the beach, Bison Band members are marching "eight steps to five yards" across the wet, bumpy "football field" at Hemlock Lodge in the Pocono Mountains. This rigorous pre-season training enables them to put on such fine half-time shows as the one done at the Homecoming game this year and entitled "Around the World." The music for this routine was arranged in ways suggestive of the various countries by Ronald Fullmer, last year's student conductor.

One of the busiest organizations on campus, the marching band participates in parades and pep rallies and accompanies the football team to several away games. Just as the band would not be the same without the stimulating spirit of Mr. Flock, so the Bucknell cheering section would miss its blue and white nucleus.

After Thanksgiving, the band moves into the "dungeon" beneath the Women's College Dining Hall. Here, in company with twisted music stands, piles of instrument cases, and the indispensable red rug, they keep their most prized possessions: their genuine ten-gallon Stetson hats. In March, they emerge as the Bucknell Symphonic Band, ready for the Music Festival and their annual spring tour, which this year took them to Long Island and northern New Jersey. Members quickly become adept at sleeping and playing bridge in bus seats. A few achieve moderate success in studying. During the year, the band plays for the May Day Festival and presents outdoor concerts in the Sem.

Peter Boor was this year's student conductor, while Margie deGroot led the band on the football field as head majorette. Officers for the year were: personnel manager, Robert Harder; business manager, David Sayer; publicity chairman, Barbara Barbarin; librarian, Nancy Rogers; secretary, Joyce Mehrling.

Head majorette for the 1958 Bison Band was junior, Margie deGroot.

Bucknell Boasts Three Vocal Groups

CHAPEL CHOIR

On Wednesday morning at five minutes of eleven, the tiny enclosure beside the handball court in Davis Gym is the scene of a mad scramble for gowns and music, a scramble which is the incongruous prelude to a sedate procession of the Chapel Choir down the aisle of the annex for the morning service. In addition to providing music for weekly chapels, the sixty-six voice choir presents an annual Christmas concert on campus. This year, the group went to the Pittsburgh and Washington areas on its fall and spring tours. Although the choir does most of its singing a capella, this year's program included some numbers with organ accompaniment.

Officers were: manager and student conductor, James Hall; assistant manager, Phyllis Gersbach; secretary, Cynthia Blunt; librarian, Janice Bunting; gown mistress, Barbara Daneluzzi; publicity manager, Kenneth Mott.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

Each year the new members of the Bucknell Men's Glee Club get the opportunity to combine a yen for travel with a desire to make the public happy, as they pack their bags and share the satisfaction and fun of the annual Glee Club tour. This year's tour included western New York State, southwestern Pennsylvania and Cleveland, Ohio, with the Glee Club appearing at various schools and church organizations.

The Glee Club's intense practice and policy of stocking its repertoire with songs which will please everyone, are well-rewarded by the enthusiasm with which the group's contributions to the Dad's Day and Glee Club's chapel program is received.

This year, under the direction of Mr. Jack Crim, the ninety-member organization participated in the Music Festival. Student manager of the Glee Club was Ven Bovard, with John Miller as his assistant; John McKenna was librarian, while Cliff Dye was the accompanist.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

"Give me a virile tone, girls!" Following this booming command, ninety beautiful feminine voices rise to inspiring tones of sacred and secular music. This masculine command and its feminine result would appear strange if one did not know that Mr. Allen Flock was the energetic director of the Women's Glee Club, and his witticisms the cause of frequent eruptions of laughter which lighten hearts and voices.

In spite of disconcerting moments of fun, the group gives an inspiring performance when it appears in concerts in conjunction with the Men's Glee Club for Dad's Day, Chapel, May Day, and Music Festival programs. The highlight of the year was a mid-year tour of the Pittsburgh area schools and churches. Student manager, Ann Blake, was assisted by Sue Pogue. Cynthia Blunt was the student conductor, and pianists Rachel Robbins and Jo Harris, accompanied the group.

INDEPENDENT WOMEN'S COUNCIL

The primary purpose of the Independent Women's Council is service. Trotting along the streets of Lewisburg, the independent women gave baskets of food to the needy at Thanksgiving. They also served through a candy sale conducted to raise money for their scholarship fund. A scholastic award, determined on the basis of achievement and need, is presented annually by the council to either an affiliated or an independent woman.

A voluntary group formed to link the independent women, the Independent Council provides many social activities. This year an informal party for freshman women was given so that freshmen might become better acquainted with the non-affiliated women. Independents enjoyed marshmallow roasts in the orchard and an overnight party at Cowan.

The Council is made up of three members from each upper class, a commuter representative, a sports representative, and the chairman, who is the independent women's representative on Senate and SFC Cabinet.

Service Organizations for Special Needs

CHI CHI—FIRST ROW: N. Kunkel, Miss E. Baird, M. Troxell, V. Enterline. SECOND ROW: K. Wieand, D. Dempsey, J. Marvin, V. Springman.

COMMUTERS' CLUB

No college life would be complete without the bull sessions, the bridge games, and the knitting hours which result in a feeling of group living. In their newly-finished commuters' room, their "home away from home," Chi Chi members can share problems, hold occasional birthday parties, study, and eat lunch.

To bring the freshman girls closer to the group and to introduce them to campus life, the organization has established a system of big and little sisters. In addition, once a month, the commuters eat in the women's dining hall, so that they can meet more women students and catch up on the gossip of the campus.

This year, Chi Chi was an active group, holding a retreat at Cowan, a mother's tea and a WSGA tea. Working in conjunction with the CA, they held a tea for the Freshman men commuters.

Monthly meetings in the commuters' room with lunches, discussions and WSGA announcements were presided over by Mollie Troxell, president and commuters' representative to Senate.

WIVES' CLUB OFFICERS—FIRST ROW: Mrs. F. Foster, Mrs. N. Hill, Mrs. D. Davis. SECOND ROW: Mrs. S. Hunn.

BUCKNELL VILLAGE WIVES' CLUB

There has been an upheaval in the politics of Bucknell Village. The women are now wearing the pants! This year the management of the community consisting of forty married couples and forty occupied mailboxes was taken over by the Wives' Club. Since all the men of the village are university students, the women have had more time to discuss the group's problems and to do something about them.

The most active members of the club, in conjunction with Dean Charles A. Meyn, considered fire hazards, speeding cars, the need for play areas, and the need for storm windows in the homes. The women also gathered to hold cake sales and rummage sales to raise money for the children of the Evangelical Home and for baby showers which they give once a semester. The women report that, although each set of newcomers is shocked at the first glimpse of their home and must make some unconventional adjustments, such as putting newspaper under rugs to keep out the cold, they soon learn to live happily in "The Village" and enjoy their neighbors.

Expression Through Dance

Dying swans?

In the fall, members of Orchesis can sometimes be recognized by their stiff-legged painful progress up the hill to their Tuesday morning classes after their first Monday night workouts. In a few weeks, however, their sacrifice of comfort in hard work has rewarded them with a limberness and grace which is evident in their various shows.

The modern dancers were assisted and directed by Mrs. Ronson, a newcomer to the Women's Physical Educational Department. This year, six members, anxious to benefit from Mrs. Ronson's experience, learned and performed an original dance, "Jubilee," which she had composed. Other activities of Orchesis this year, included the showing of several unique dance films starring Jose Lemon and Martha Graham and, in response to the great success of the combined Swim Club and Orchesis performance of last year, the presentation of another joint production.

The officers of Orchesis were president, Lynne Geller; vice president, Susan Alisch; and secretary, Virginia Notari.

SYNCHRONETTES

These Girls Work at Swimming

A crisp command to "jump into those suits and into that pool" marks the beginning of another weekly practice session of the Synchronettes. The seemingly effortless strokes and the graceful dolphins and walk-overs of the Synchronettes are actually the result of these rigorous practices. When each weekly work-out is over, in spite of aching muscles and straight, wet hair, the girls are rewarded by a feeling of exhilaration and a desire to swim again the next week. By working out as a team, the swimmers come closer each week to their ultimate goal of synchronized perfection and professional grace.

This year, Synchronettes was composed of twenty-one girls and an apprentice group of twelve. The main performance of the year was the program given in April in conjunction with the Modern Dance Club. The theme of this program, "Rhythm in America," made use of various eras of music as a background against which to display the talent of the two groups.

Mrs. Ronson acted as adviser for the group, while members of the group wrote their own shows. The officers were Sue Bomberger, president; Judy Baymiller, vice president; Judy Keppler, secretary, and Barb Dunning, treasurer.

Symmetry is difficult to attain.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

Fraternity pledges have one hundred and one uses.

The Interfraternity Council, which is composed of representatives from each of the thirteen fraternities at Bucknell, attempts to solve the problems and adopt the rules which pertain to the men's Greek organizations. Seeking to coordinate the activities of each fraternity, IFC sponsors the intramural athletic program and co-sponsors with Panhellenic Council pledge service projects and an annual dance. To further the aims of the national fraternity movement, it formulates the rushing rules followed by all fraternities. Encouraging fraternity members to live up to the standards and purposes of the University, it promotes good taste, morals, and intellectual progress. A scholarship trophy is awarded to the fraternity obtaining the highest group average, and a scholarship is awarded each semester to a worthy junior or senior male student. And to help the groups become more responsible as integral parts of the school, IFC leads such discussions as that of this year's SFC Leadership Weekend: "How can fraternities best help the University?"

Ted Heath provided the music for the Panhell-IFC formal.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

To coordinate the efforts of the nine sororities at Bucknell, each sorority appoints representatives to Panhellenic Council. The hand of this organization can be seen in the uniform nature of rushing teas, in the periodic appearance of all sorority women in black skirts and white blouses for the taking of group pictures and composites, and in the annual song-fest which last year flooded the campus to overflowing with strains of "The Lord's My Shepherd . . ."

Working often in conjunction with IFC, the council plans an annual dance, and arranges for joint service projects for both fraternity and sorority pledges. Panhellenic also provides opportunities for its members to write to girls at Laurelton. In its capacity as supervisor of all joint sorority affairs, Panhellenic arranges for tours of the suites for freshmen, and evaluates the rushing system annually. This year's rushing innovation was the changing of some of the formal teas to informal, to the grateful relief of freshmen and upperclassmen alike.

SPORTS

MR. R. ODELL
Coach

Terhes gets a pass away in the nick of time.

FOOTBALL

The Bucknell football team was not as strong in 1958 as was expected. The Bisons had a poor 1-8 tally at Thanksgiving time. For the most part, although the Herd put up a good battle against all adversaries, they were unable to match such strong teams as Rutgers, Delaware, Lafayette, and Buffalo.

The football team opened their seventy-third season against Gettysburg in the Harrisburg Rotary Club's annual Chocolate Bowl game. The Bisons held their own in the first half, but lack of reserves in the second half bogged down their defense, and eventually they succumbed to defeat. However George Salinger, guard, was selected an All-East player of the week.

On Dad's Day, Colgate came to Lewisburg for the Saturday afternoon contest. In this gruelling game the Bisons put on their best performance of the season. They held a superior Raider team to only seven points. During most of the game the men from Buffalo Valley kept the ball in Colgate territory.

Bucknell's turn to journey took them to Rutgers. The gridiron boys from the banks of Susquehanna couldn't quite handle the rough team, and in particular, Rutgers' Austin.

Homecoming found the Bisons facing a strong Lafayette team. During the first half the team held the men from Easton, but in the second, inadequate reserves were again the death knoll for Bucknell. The game against Lehigh was almost a repeat performance of the Lafayette game defensively.

In Philadelphia the Herd won their first and only victory of the year over Temple. Bucknell kept the traditional "Old Shoe" for another year. The team went off campus again to fight hard but vainly against Buffalo, and to repeat the performance in their last game with Delaware.

Paul Terhes was selected to the All-Middle Atlantic team as quarterback. Outstanding seniors were Dick Hunn, Mike Hixon, Chuck Apgar, Buzzy Errickson, Bob Kosher, Norm Davies, and Dave Ott.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

The 1958 edition of the freshman football team proved heart-warming to future football prospects at Bucknell. Directed by head coach Bob Latour and his competent assistants, Franny Hatton and Chuck Wagner, the Baby Bisons thrilled spectators with their exciting play and their continuous hustle. A close loss to Delaware kept the Bisons from compiling a perfect season.

The freshmen opened the season against Gettysburg and easily won the contest before the large crowd at Bucknell. With spirit riding high, they travelled to Delaware. The Blue Hens finally registered the winning tally after Bucknell had repelled several Delaware scoring attempts.

Returning home to meet Bloomsburg, the frosh rebounded with a convincing victory, then awaited their encounter with Lehigh. Winning this game by a large margin capped a very successful campaign for the Bucknell freshmen and indicated that the 1959 varsity can count on plenty of help from the sophomore class.

SOCCKER

Playing an extremely tough schedule, the 1958 Bucknell soccer team compiled a 3-7 record. After losing to perennially strong Penn State and Temple, the Petersmen scored successive wins over Lycoming and Gettysburg. Following this were hotly contested losses to Navy, Elizabethtown, and Drexel. Bucknell came back with a 3-1 victory over Muhlenberg. Steve Flamhaft, Roger Mackey, and Bob Schad received all Middle-Atlantic honors, second team.

Leading the forward line was co-captain Jim Balta along with Bob Schad, Frank Lineaweaver, and Meade Geisel. The backfield was sparked by the steady play of Flamhaft, co-captain Tom Clark, Dale Pederson, and goalie Bill Sharp, who made sensational saves.

Back to lead a promising 1959 team will be co-captains Schad and Flamhaft. Coach Hank Peters will also count heavily on returning lettermen such as John Toal, Dave Boger, Lineaweaver, Geisel and Grant Watkins, along with some fine freshman prospects.

Flamhaft played in the North-South All Star game at St. Petersburg, Florida, in December, and qualified for the Pan-American trials in March.

SWIMMING

The 1959 Bucknell swimming team produced an outstanding record for a three-year old team. Showing an improvement over last year, the team, under the competent coaching of Bob Latour, was victorious in six of eight meets. Bucknell lost only to deeply entrenched Penn and Delaware teams.

In the Middle Atlantic Championships at Franklin and Marshall, the Bisons finished fifth out of fifteen teams. Bill Barrett, undefeated all season, became the first M. A. C. swimming champion in the short history of the aquatic sport at Bucknell. Barrett, scoring 73 points during the season, placed first in the M. A. C. 50 yard free style and fourth in a close final in the 100 yard free style. Team captain Bob Buys was second for the Bisons with 45 points. Other top swimmers were Skip Cannon, Bob Erdahl, Kent Smith, Dick Kershner, Bill Sharkey, Frank Wood, John Edel and Mike Rothbart. Doug Forsyth won five diving events, and Jim Brubaker won one.

In June the Bucknell mermen will lose four senior lettermen: Barrett, Buys, Bill Schreiber and Sharkey, but they look forward to receiving replacements from the freshman team, which won first place this year in the freshman Middle Atlantic Championships.

BASKETBALL

For the third year in a row, the Bucknell basketball team, coached by Ben Kribbs, produced one of the finest varsity records in the school's history. In fact, the 1959 season was the best in Bison basketball history. The hoopsters posted a 17-7 record. They started out the season at a fast pace, and petered out at the end of their journey through twenty-four contests. A good deal of Bucknell's success can be attributed to the experience of the players, the coaching of Ben Kribbs, strong defense, and stout rebounding.

This season Bucknell had the pleasure of dumping Penn State and Gettysburg twice. The courtmen also had the thrill of squeezing out the strong Temple team.

Center Hal Danzig was selected again as one of the ten all-stars from the Eastern Collegiate Conference, made up of sixteen schools. During Christmas the Bisons performed creditably in the Carousel Tournament.

Unfortunately the basketball team will lose to graduation many of its stars for the past three years, namely Co-captains Hal Danzig and Ellis Harley, Jack Flanagan, Bob Ericsson, and Bill Wooster. Still remaining are standouts, Pete Matz and Tommy Thompson.

The Bucknell freshman basketball team played a fairly light thirteen-game schedule this year. The Baby Bisons, coached by Ed Pfeiffer of Northumberland, rolled to establish a creditable 10-3 record for the year. The freshmen started off hot by easily beating Gettysburg, Lehigh and Sunbury Y. They suffered their first defeat at the hands of Penn State by a score of 76-62. Later in the season the team was again defeated by State 58-69. The only other defeat the Bison Juniors received was with Muhlenberg's compliments. Doug Hill and Don Lampus were the freshman standouts.

WRESTLING

This season the Bucknell wrestling team finished with a successful record of six wins and one defeat. The team was led to victory by John Ayre, who posted a 7-0 record at 130 pounds; Dave Murdock, who tallied a perfect 6-0 mark at 167 pounds; John McKenna at 157 pounds; Captain Rowland Bell at 137 pounds; Ken Wightman at 123 pounds; Carl Hudson at 177 pounds; and Grant Watkins at heavyweight.

In the Middle Atlantic Championship at Hofstra, the Bisons placed fourth out of eighteen teams, and one star won individual honors. John Ayre won four rugged matches to capture the M. A. C. title in the 130-pound class and establish a season record of 11-0. Dave Murdock saw his victory string of 18-0 end when he lost in the finals at 167. Rowland Bell, Pete Fritts, and Grant Watkins reached the semi-finals. Since the matmen, coached ably this year by Bill Wrabley, are losing only one man via graduation, the team should be very strong again next year.

BASEBALL

Bucknell's 1958 baseball team got off to a rough start by losing its first five games, including a close 7-4 decision to Penn State, annually one of the top collegiate teams in the country. The Bisons then got moving with an 8-3 victory over Franklin and Marshall. A large Mother's Day crowd saw Bucknell defeat Albright, 19-2, with Dick Pitlo picking up five hits. This was followed by an identical victory (19-2) over Susquehanna. The team finished up the year with losses to Temple and Delaware and with victories over Muhlenberg and Penn. During the Penn game, first baseman Larry Dempster, and pitcher Tommy Thompson carried the load for Bucknell.

Coach Oberlin counted heavily on returning lettermen Thompson, Pitko, Staley, and Harley in providing the nucleus for the 1959 Bison baseball team.

GOLF

The 1958 golf team ended the season with a 5-8 record. Their mentor, Harold Evans, had anticipated a slight let-down due to the graduation of several 1957 regulars. The linkmen defeated Franklin and Marshall, Temple, Delaware, Scranton, and Juniata.

Hopes for 1959 were brightened considerably by the return of a strong nucleus of last year's veterans, including Dick Bartholomew, Jerry Lindholm, George Harder, John McDonald, and Bill Curtis, plus promising freshmen.

TENNIS

Coach Hank Peter's netmen tied for the championship of the Middle Atlantic Conference as they rolled up a season's record of ten victories in fifteen starts. The team easily overcame Lafayette, St. Joseph's, Albright, Dickinson, Gettysburg, Pittsburgh, Delaware, Muhlenberg, Lehigh, and Franklin and Marshall.

The 1959 netmen felt the loss of Captain Charles Siede. The squad still had number-one man Bill Sweet, and such outstanding players as Bob Goecker, Henry Livas, Meade Geisel, and Al Ruebel. Although the team again faces several outstanding foes, chances for another winning season appear bright.

TRACK

Bucknell's 1958 track team, with a record of five wins and two losses, was the first group of Bison thinclads to lose a dual meet in three years, but turned in fine performances against improved opposition. The team easily ran over Ursinus and Albright in a triangular meet, then downed F. & M., Juniata, and Muhlenberg in dual meets.

Coach Bus Blum attributes the team's outstanding success to the efforts of Co-Captains Chuck Wagner and Ollie Clowe in their drive for a unified and complete team. Among the outstanding trackmen for Bucknell were Wagner and Dick Merrill in the 100 yd. dash, Roger Connors in the 440, John Carlson in the 880, miler Dave Lynch, hurdler Bob Wright, and pole vaulter John Mueller.

CHEERLEADERS — B CLUB

Amid the trumpets and drums, bonfires and cheering crowds, extra points and hotdogs with mustard, half-court passes and rebounds, the cheerleaders spark the pep and enthusiasm of spectators. Members of each class were on this year's squad, which was captained by Gayle Myers.

Other students whose support of Bucknell's teams is loud and clear are the members of the "B" Club. The club, composed of all those men who have earned their letter in any of the varsity sports at Bucknell, aids in publicity for sports events, operates a refreshment booth at the home games, and takes children from the Lewisburg Orphanage to one of the varsity football games. The "B" Club also awards a scholarship each year to a deserving athlete.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

"Get that ball! Come on men!" Cheers issue forth from enthusiastic spectators as the spirit and teamwork of the men's intramural games stimulate the crowd. The season began as Phi Kappa Psi smashed the tennis ball over the net to defeat Sigma Alpha Epsilon in the fraternity league, and to take the trophy in a 3-0 play-off with the 234 East Wing team.

While Phi Gamma Delta controlled the soccer ball their victories were inevitable, but the 234 West Wing achieved the final school championship. In the last battle, a 2-1 play-off, the 234 West Wing team set a new record by becoming the first freshman group to win the school trophy.

Another record was established when Kappa Delta Rho used their heads and their hands to slam the ball for a victory over Sigma Alpha Mu in the handball play-off. Besides winning the school championship with three straight games, the fraternity won its first intramural trophy.

This season was the first time the freshmen and the fraternity leagues fought for a single school championship trophy. The plan, initiated by Bus Blum, the men's intramurals supervisor, has placed the two leagues on an equal plane, thus achieving a more unified and more competitive spirit within the intramural program.

WOMEN'S RECREATION ASSOCIATION

WRA is synonymous with fun. Led by Molly Wolford this year, the Women's Recreation Association assembles a well-rounded athletic program, providing each girl with the opportunity to display her skill or just to get some exercise. The association sponsors both inter-class and inter-group activities to accomplish these ends. For girls with more specialized skills, WRA organizes the Synchronized Swimming Club and the Modern Dance Club, whose bathing suits and leotards make their intriguing appearances in an annual spring show produced through the cooperation of both groups.

Among the activities of WRA are the annual fall picnics for freshmen, complete with hot dogs, singing and skits, and the Spring May Day celebration for parents and students which serves as a showcase for WRA talent.

THE LAST WORD

The editor wishes to thank—

Miss EISLEY, for her time and help.
 MR. TAYLOR, for capturing on paper my ideas more beautifully than I had imagined them.
 MR. BREON, for his many trips from State College to Bucknell and for his graciousness.
 MR. AND MRS. FREGLEY, for their cooperation, especially in the pinches.
 JANE DAHL AND CAROL ROGGE, for doing much of the dirty work.
 A certain suitefull of people, for their interest, help and patience.

1909 Half a Century Later

All classes must have a beginning and in due time a fifty-year birthday. And this year 1909 is in the limelight. Most of us have now reached an age of retirement and some of us are doing secretarial work for the angels, or what have you?

Life has been good to us, our educational advantages have led into green pastures and beside the still waters and many more compensations than we rightly deserved. Indeed, to have been a college man or woman always gave us a favored place and position and prestige in life seldom achieved by less fortunate individuals.

Bucknell has come a long way since our Freshman entrance. Her financial and physical assets have multiplied. She has grown in wisdom and stature and her alumni and her faculty and scholarship are favorably known in world wide areas. We consider these favorable circumstances a high honor and deem it a privilege to have been associated with such a fine institution, lo, these many years. And to us she has never been without honor right on her own home grounds. Only an infinitesimal number of students and faculty have been discourteous or displeasing to us in any way. We have known only a couple of faculty members who were fully convinced that the wisdom of this world would terminate at their death, but that didn't worry anybody else. Some strange being once appeared on our scholastic shores, who had probably escaped from a Latin Pony Stable with his head and neck always in the clouds, too proud and self important to notice the common herd. Certainly the physical aspects of this relative of a bookworm would have been more becoming and admirable in a well bred horse.

But Bucknell's big men and important men of the campus have always been humble and unassuming men, always big enough to be courteous and to fraternize with little men, even men of little importance in the mind of the self-inflated Mr. Bigdome.

Scarcely any business man enjoys such a high type of patronage and prestige and congenial atmosphere as we have long enjoyed. Here, friends meet friends, students meet faculty, the faculty meets the students, and a more friendly atmosphere is always engendered at the coffee break time.

Yes, Bucknell has been good to us throughout our business career. She has given us a good living and we will not embarrass her in anyway by selling out to some undesirable tradesman. We will leave our few differences, largely concerned with Scrooges and jealous people that afflict all institutions, to some future judgments where all facts are known and motives weighed. The College Inn will soon be given to Bucknell University and our lifetime's work to an institution worthy in every way for the gifts she has given to all her sons and daughters. We wouldn't know a better place for any charity.
